

---

worm ID please

Posted by cherryredshrimp - 2009/07/29 19:02

---

Hello everyone I'm new to worming and was wondering if someone can id these worms for me? The 1st worm is much larger than the second, are they the same worm? I'm also color blind so I cant tell any color difference. Thanks for your help.

The 1st worm was found in my backyard

<http://i41.photobucket.com/albums/e252/gillbert1/160.jpg>

This worm I orderd online

<http://i41.photobucket.com/albums/e252/gillbert1/159.jpg>

=====

Re:worm ID please

Posted by UncleJim - 2009/07/30 11:33

---

It is hard to really tell from these pictures. They don't seem to be red wigglers or european nighcrawlers.

=====

Re:worm ID please

Posted by BigTexWorms - 2009/08/05 22:38

---

The notebook you have them on is hotpink so it is hard to tell the color of the worms.

Can you put them on a white surface and perhaps next to a measuring tape so we can see the length?

=====

Re:worm ID please

Posted by Kaywood - 2010/09/01 12:58

---

That is what I found in MY yard. It could be an Alabama Jumper? They are better off going back in the dirt I think?

=====

Re:worm ID please

Posted by redhen - 2010/09/01 21:28

---

Check this site out and see if you can ID from the photos. Amy used to post long ago and still has some of the best ID photos around.

<http://pets.webshots.com/album/93031731AZXEzc>

=====